LOCAL OARSMEN LIKE WASHINGTON'S SHOWING

The victory of Syracuse in the big intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie last Saturday comes as a big surprise to local followers of the rowing game, who looked to see Cornell or Wisconsin take first honors. That the University of Washington took third place is a matter for congratulation among Pacific Coast sportsmen, and makes up in a manner for the overwhelming defeat of Stanford in the same event last year. The press dispatches are at variance, Cornell being given second place in one report, and Wisconsin given the place in another. The 4-mile course was covered in the fast time of 19:28 3-5 minutes.

Cornell, Wisconsin and Syracuse finished in the order named in the freshman race, while in the four-oar the crews finished Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia.

M'CARTHY SAYS SAYS MONEY IS STORY A PURE CANARD TIGHT ON COAST

City and County Treasurer Charles J. McCarthy has asked the Star-Bulletin to correct a wrong impression gained from an article appearing in the morning publication in which it was made to appear that a tax was to be imposed upon persons engaged in the writing or publication of literature in any form, and that he had spent a half day dispatching letters to persons subject to the tax, warning them that unless it was paid at once their arrest would follow.

Because of the story, which he declares is untrue, many persons have called at his office regarding it, taking up his time and theirs. So in order to clear the matter up, he made the following statement this morning.

"It is absolutely untrue that we are taxing brains, or putting a $25 annual tax on persons because they are engaged in writing. There is positively no ground for such a belief. The law clearly says that this tax is one on goods, wares and merchandise, and has nothing to do with the one who writes a novel, or music or an advertisement. It is upon the one who sells the goods that the tax falls. It is nothing but a mercantile license tax which every one must pay who sells goods, wares or merchandise within the territory.

"The taxes are being paid by the merchants. I have suggested to those who do not believe in the validity of the law, or its application to them, that they pay it under protest, which preserves their legal right to attack the statute. This is being done by a number. A test case is now on appeal to the supreme court. The lower court rendered its opinion in favor of the tax, from which the appeal is taken. Those who pay the tax under protest will probably abide by the decision of the higher court.

"The morning paper stated that I wrote fifty-eight letters the other day, warning persons or firms subject to the tax that if they did not pay I would have them arrested. That is untrue. I have written no such letters."

CENSUS BUREAU SENDS ANALYSIS OF FIGURES

Figures were received today elaborating the previously-published statistics of the 1910 census, relating to Hawaii. The new figures make no changes in the earlier bulletins and are simply elaborations of the information collected for the thirteenth census. The population of the islands, referred to in a wireless dispatch to the morning paper yesterday, together with the race percentages and race increases, were all published locally when the census figures were announced more than a year ago.

According to a story related to the police by residents in the neighborhood, three men wearing the uniform of enlisted men visited the premises occupied by Tanaka near the corner of River and Queen streets. Following some words, one or more of the party is alleged to have employed a bottle to administer a series of blows about the head and body.

The police are making inquiry into the matter today.

It is denied by his countrymen here that his appearance in Japan is for that purpose, and it is pointed out that he is not in favor in his islands. Aguinaldo is said to have entered Japan secretly, dressed in the garb of that country.
